

Your 10-Minute Wardrobe Reset.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD COLLECTIVE

Your life has changed, but your wardrobe hasn't quite followed. You have a wardrobe full of pieces, yet nothing feels quite right. You're wearing the same favourites, buying with good intentions, and still feeling like something is missing.

You don't need more. You need a more considered edit and a wardrobe that feels effortless, intentional, and entirely your own.

In this quick reset, you'll:

1. Clear out five pieces that aren't serving you.
2. Identify one thing your wardrobe is missing.
3. Create one outfit you can rely on.

Open your wardrobe and find five pieces you haven't worn in a while. Don't overthink it. Choose the things that:

1. Don't fit properly.
2. Don't feel like you anymore.
3. You keep moving from one side of the wardrobe to the other.
4. You bought it because you thought you should have them.
5. Something you simply never reach for.

Ask yourself this simple question: if I saw this in the shop today, would I buy it?

YES - Keep it!

NO - Ask whether it should be altered, sold, donated or passed on.

ONE SMALL WIN: You've created space, clarity, and possibility – without buying a thing.

01

Remove five.

02

Now, take a second look.

What do you reach for and what do you wish you had? Perhaps it's the perfect trouser, a considered jacket, an effortless dress, or the finishing piece that pulls it all together. Don't start a shopping list. Identify one genuine gap; a piece that makes what you already own work harder.

What am I missing?

Why I need it?

TNC Tip: Clarity comes from knowing what's missing, not adding more of what you already have.

Now choose three pieces you already own that make you feel good and build one outfit around them.

Think:

1 x Hero piece, 1 x foundation piece & 1 x finishing piece.

E.g. Blazer, jeans & great shoes OR a dress, jacket & statement earrings.

How does this fit make you feel?

Effortless • Confident • At Ease • Authentic •
Intentional • Uncomplicated • Considered • Self-
Assured • Naturally Chic • Modern

Take a photo of this outfit & save it somewhere easy to find!

03

Breakthrough: You've just created a shortcut for the next morning when you have "nothing to wear."

Create your go-to look.

Your 10-Minute
Reset is done.

Note:

You haven't bought anything new.
You haven't overhauled your wardrobe.
You haven't let go of everything.

But you have created three small shifts that makes the world of difference!

The Neighborhood Collective's Wardrobe Edit is more than a clear-out. It's about discovering what works, refining what doesn't, identifying what's missing, and knowing what you can stop buying. Because the goal isn't to have more, but to know what truly works for you.

Ready for the full Wardrobe Edit?

At The Neighborhood Collective, we create considered, personal wardrobes that feel effortless; using what you already own, with intention.

Instead of continually asking “What should I buy?” Start asking a much better question, “What actually works for me?”
